WILLING TO STAY ON FARM

Children Have Little Thought of Leaving Home Which They Had Share in Planning.

A man who settled on a piece of land made it into an orderly farm. His crops were always good and his animals thrived, but the main work that he accomplished was the rearing of a family of five children, each one of whom was given an education.

It was a well-filled farmhouse while the youngsters were small and, naturally, as they grew the house became crowded. He then set about building a new dwelling. The old one was moved across the road; the farm teams made an excavation for a cellar. Then came the concrete foundation walls, and soon there uprose the framework of the new house that the family in council had planned.

Eventually from under the hands of the workmen emerged the completed house with its bath, open fires, cheery living room, sunny kitchen and sleeping porches. It was a snug fit all around, and the family enjoyed it; all revelled in the unaccustomed comforts of a well-planned, well-built house. The owner has since died, leaving a son and daughters on the farm, with no one dreaming of moving to town.—Bogden's Gazette.

Passing of The Jingo.

Where are the jingoes of 1898? When in February of that year the battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor of Havana, a flame of patriotic fury swept the country from one end to the other.

President McKinley, an advocate of peace, was swept off his feet. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Canadian border to the gulf, a hoarse cry for war went up. War was declared and the unfortunate Cubans were freed from the oppression of the Spaniards.

Now twenty American soldiers are killed in Mexico and 100 or more civilians are sent to the bottom by a German submarine, the country is calm and there is a disposition to support the president to the fullest degree. The people realize fully that nothing is to be gained and everything might be lost by headlong action at this time.

The sinking of the Lusitania and the drowning of its passengers was all an incident in a war with which we have little or more concern. Germany gave every evidence of its good intent by doing all it could to keep Americans off that ship.

The jingoes are silent and Americans stand as one behind the men now at the head of the government. It makes no difference whether they agree with the ideas and policies of the president or not he is the man in charge and is entitled to the sympathy and support of every one.

And it is gratifying to note that he is receiving it without regard to creed, party or anything else. With such a condition of affairs existing the country is bound to emerge unscathed from the maze of diplomatic entanglement in which it now finds itself.—Gleaner.

When baby suffers with eczema or some itching skin trouble, use Doan's Ointment. A little of it goes a long way and it is safe for children. 50c a box at all stores.

Good and Evil.

We often try in vain to cut up our errors by the roots, to fight evil hand to hand on its own ground, where it has us at a disadvantage, whereas our most sure way to victory is by developing and fortifying the good that is in us. We have but a certain measure of strength and activity; as much of this as is added to the good is taken from the evil.—Mme. Swetchine.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the family system tonic. Price, $1.00.
